
Example 1: India Leadership Workshop for MLAs across 18 states in India

India Leadership Workshop

India Leadership Workshop (ILW) is a three day highly competitive program designed for a select group of “Members of Legislative Assembly (MLAs)” and “Members of Parliament” (MP’s) across India. Indian School of Business (ISB) is engaged in delivering this program for PRS Legislative Research (PRS) and has delivered programs since last 4 yrs for a group of 200 members.

The Workshop is targeted for leaders who want to be more effective in their work and rise up to positions of greater influence as well as who want to imbibe new ways of working and building professional networks with their peers from other states.

Program objectives

- Understanding your role: If you need to be effective in your role, then it is important to know what your role really is.
- Leveraging your resources: How can you derive the maximum benefit from the resources that you have? How do you make them work for you? A key element of the curriculum will be the effective management of resources: time, people and the media.
- Gaining insights into policy making: What is your role as a policy maker? How can you shape the future of the state by making policies that work for the people?
- Engaging with stakeholders: How can you work with the bureaucracy to make sure the various development schemes are being uniformly implemented? What are the tools you need to understand? Your state budget? How can you determine the funds available for your constituency?

Program Structure / Faculty / Topics

The workshop includes classroom sessions coupled with interactive tools, activities, field visits to engage the participants in real life situations.

The program is conducted and guided by multiple faculties who have expertise in the area of Public policy, Economics, Public Finance, Centrally sponsored Schemes, Effective Leadership and Negotiation Strategies and influencing skills. In addition, select, prominent experts are invited to discuss key issues in public sector in today’s scenario.
